Easier Integration

How do I control who can read my journal entries? What are security settings?

You can control who can read your entries by setting entry security levels (Public, Friends - , Custom - , and Private - ) when posting or editing an entry. When you are logged into your account, you will always be able to see your own entries on your Recent Entries page, no matter what security setting you use.

What are custom friends groups? How do I use them?

LiveJournal allows you to select some or all of the people on your Friends list for custom friends groups. In your personal journal, a custom friends group can be used to post entries only part of your friends list can see. In any journal, you can use a custom friends group to display only certain friends on your Friends page, particularly with two special friends groups: Default View and Mobile View. Custom friends groups can also be used with other LiveJournal features, such as FOAF, to-do lists, and tags. You may also be interested in filtering your friends page by journal type (community, personal, syndicated) without using custom friends groups.

Create a group by clicking the "New" button, typing a name for the group in the window that pops up, and clicking "OK". You can create up to 30 custom friends groups, whose names can be up to 30 characters long.
